

An abstract painting featuring a vibrant palette of colors. The top half is dominated by warm tones of orange, yellow, and light green, with some darker green accents. The bottom half transitions into cooler tones, including various shades of green, teal, and deep blue, with some yellow highlights. The brushwork is expressive and textured, with visible strokes and some white areas where the paint was not applied, creating a sense of movement and depth.

I'm Marsel Ajazi. I am 13 years old and I live in the "Vullnetari" neighborhood in Elbasan. My family consists of 6 members 2 children, my parents and my grandparents. My family's economic situation is not good. When I became a member of the project , my family's economy was relieved because the expenses were reduced because the project donated food, school supplies, household items like detergents etc. This season we went on excursion and for me it was a beautiful experience. That was a very nice memory , but also for my friends. Before finishing school some Dutch people visited our school and donated some packages that inside contained different items for the children of my age. Well I am very happy to be part of this. Thank you so much .
